

Please be advised that a large solar mirror/shield or reflector/intensifier is hovering in a stationary position in geogravitational Earth's Orbit. This power gather source could be a sign of a stellar communication system in place. Could also knock out a grid. Is it authorized by NASA, DOD, or other Government Agency? Some work in conjunction with metallic entities in the blood and eyes, such as copper and silver! Bad dreams and babble are within its' capabilities.

It may also be a similar system to the FAA's LAAS/SWG programs with VDB antenna and housing units and a RRA object clearing zone, both transient and stationary where the environment may need to be cleared to minimize the pseudorange.

Hopefully, it is not a tap of an existing system by a criminal group of cyber-terrorists with a non-cooperative interferer status.

Thanks for your continued concern and considerations to this question and added comments.